Waveland adopts garbage fee

BY RICHARD MEEK

The new year will usher in a garbage fee in Waveland for the first time in the city's his-

By a 3-1 vote Tuesday night, with Alderman Jay Fleuriet dissenting, the Board of Aldermen voted to impose a $6 per month garbage fee on the city's residents, effective Jan. 1, although legalities may postpone the implementation date. The move is expected to bring an additional $180,000 into the city's coffers, and offset the cost the city pays to Boudin's Waste and Recycling for garbage pick-

In fiscal year 1994-95, Waveland was charged $142.000 by Boudin's. City officials said they are expecting an increase in the near future. Waveland residents have their garbage collected twice a week.

The fee also reverses earlier discussions held by the aldermen during budget workshops. Although no formal vote was taken, it was generally agreed that the city would impose a garbage fee, and then reduce the water and gas fee by the same amount, thereby creating zero financial impact on Waveland citizens.

Such shuffling of funds is legal, according to state officials. However, the garbage fee arrangement was agreed upon before the aldermen realized they had adopted a budget with expenses exceeding reva enues by nearly $600,000.

"We told people the fees would not be added," Fleuriet said in a Monday workshop.

"But we found out later we were way over budget," Mayor John Mason responded. "We're trying to pay our bills."

There also appeared to be a misunderstanding among the aldermen and mayor that the fee is a mandate from the state. Mason said the city must pay for garbage "because we're still in violation of the law."

Alderman Louis Smolensky said he does not want to implement the fee, but "the law says we must do it."

However, city attorneys and an official in the state auditor's office said that is not necessarilv the case. The confusion apparently stems from the fact that Waveland citizens have never been charged for garbage service. However, several years ago the state legislature enacted legislation that placed a prohibition on cities paying for garbage service.

However, Waveland never implemented a policy that complied with the statute. City attorney Lucien Gex admitted that for a period of close to two years, the city "was not in compliance with the statute."

An official in the state auditor's office said on Wednesday he was unaware of the city's apparent violations. He said when the auditor's office is notified of any offense, the case is passed on to either the Attorney General or local District Attorney.

In 1994, under intense pressure from municipalities, the legislature rescinded the prohi-

In Waveland's case, it was an apparent return to business as usual. However, budgetary considerations, according to city officials, have forced imposing the garbage fee.

The 1994 law states that cities may "defray the cost of establishing and operating the (garbage) system" by imposing millage of not more than four mills, or a set fee.

Traditionally, the city's general fund, from which garbage services have been paid, has been bolstered by the transference of revenue from the Water and Gas Department. In the 1995-96 budget, nearly $800,000 of the utility's revenue has been transferred to the general fund.

Fleuriet objected to the fee because he said the city needs to further look at cutting expenses. Before the final budget was adopted, which still has to be amended before Dec. 15 to reflect deeper cuts, the proposed document trimmed by $1.1 million.

Property sale under scrutiny

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Bay St. Louis City Council went behind closed doors Tuesday to discuss sale of more than an acre of land touching Highway 90.

The property at issue was acquired by the city for delinquent taxes, and was the subject of three appraisals after the owner of Taconi's Hardware asked for a city price on the vacant land

In a workshop Monday, Mayor Eddie Favre recommended the land be offered at some $16,000 to $17,000, the average of the two lowest appraisals plus the appraisers' fees and closing costs. The high appraisal was $55,000.

Favre said the two lower appraisals were more realistic, and were prepared by appraisers more knowledgeable of real estate conditions in Bay St.

Costs rise for housing mental patients

BY ED LEPOMA

It costs Hancock County taxpayers more than $157,000 last year to house patients awaiting transfer to the state's mental hospital in Whitfield. And, the tab this year could near $250,000.

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors is disturbed by the mounting expense, and has invited area legislators to its meeting Dec. 15 to see what can be done.

"The truth of the matter is that these people are eating ments after county comptroller Nov. 30, a total $40,380 has the county alive," District 1 Supervisor Robert Peterson complained. "Something needs to be done to make the state take these prisoners on a more timely basis."

Peterson made his com-

Baxter awarded $58,000

BY MARY G. SEILEY

A Hancock County civil court jury recently awarded George Baxter a $58,000 judgment against Union Planters

The verdict climaxed a months-long legal battle that centered on furnishings in the Diamondhead home of Baxter, former chief of Jubilee Casino.

The bank, formerly known as Sunburst Bank, sued Baxter and his wife last June, seeking possession of furniture and artworks in the Baxter home. The bank contended that the furnishings were collateral for a loan which the Baxters had failed to pay off.

Waveland water safe

BY RICHARD MEEK

Waveland residents noticing slight discoloration or odor emitting from their water should not be alarmed, Waveland Public Utilities Director Steve Landry said.

"We are running tests on the water, and there is no problem," he said. "It is completely safe to Landry said the problem stems from a forced shutdown of the Gulfview waterwell. The city has four wells, with two in operation at all time on a rotating basis. Landry said the shutdown of the Gulfview facility places added pressure on the other three, causing the discoloration or odor.

The area most affected, Landry said, is the residential areas near Waveland Elementary School and the fire station.

"We have a few complaints from neighbors, but I want to emphasize the water is healthy to drink," he said.

Landry said when crews went to replace a malfunctioning shaft at the Gulfview well. which had already caused two motors to burn out, it was dis-covered a pump also needed to be replaced.

Landry said the total cost of the repairs will be in the neighborhood of $12,000.

He said repairs should be completed later this week, or early next week, at which time the water should return to its normal tint and odor.

Landry's crew also recently repaired a well on Tide Street to bring the city back up to capacity. According to city officials, the Tide Street well had been inoperable for several years.

Almost two years ago, the Board of Supervisors has proposed building a county marina at the foot of Pleasure street, which runs through the middle of the subdivision. The Board contracted with Compton Engineering to draw up design plans.

As envisioned, the marina would rin between Lakeshore Drive ard Bayou Caddy providing boat slips along Pleasure Street in an oblong pattern. About 144 private slips are planned and four public slips. There would also be 26 spaces for public parking, a public boat ramp, an entertainment pavilion and a gazebo. Funding for the initial first phase of the project is virtually assured because the county has earmarked its share of Tidelands monies for its construction.

Last September, the State Department of Marine Resources, which doles out the grant money, presented Hancocke County with a check for $500,007, which it plans to use to acquire land and begin construction on the marina.

The county also plans to use another $260,000 the Port and Harbor Commission has in escrow from the sale of the Bayou Caddy Marina, which was purchased when the gaming barge Jubilee located on the Lakeshore.

A check for another $500,000 in Tidelands Funds is expected to be delivered to the county in the coming year.

The site, known as the Bayou Caddy Subdivision, is located on a man-made canal and Bayou Caddy in Southwest Hancock County. It is partially developed as a residential subdivision with no water or sewerage or paved streets. It contains 96 lots, only 12 of which are partially developed.

The 6.8 acres is bounded by Bayou Caddy on the south, Lakeshore Road on the north, Bordages Street on the west and Ohio Street on the east. E. Lee Bennett, the county's chief appraiser, surveyed the area last May at the request of supervisors. Bennett said the "as is" appraised value of the raw land with road access was $225,000. He estimated the market value of the 6.8 acres, if it were completely developed, would be $370,000.

Last September, the county also contracted with Robert J. Heitzmann of Bay St. Louis to make an independent appraisal.

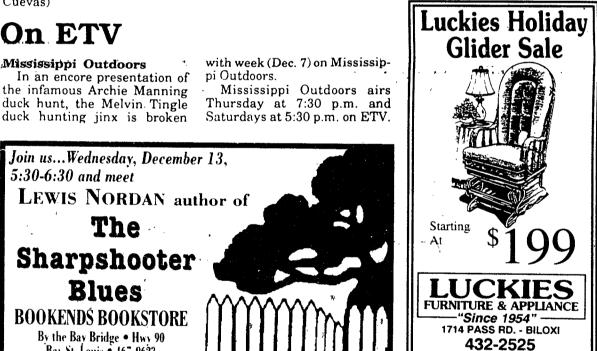

Heitzmann valued the 84 undeveloped lots at $2,000 each and the 12 partially improved lots at $5,500 each for a total appraisal of $240,000.

The stumbling block seems to be the family and heirs of Walter-Villere III, who own the majority of the undeveloped

Gex said he has been negotiating with Donald Theriot, the attorney representing the Villere's interests, but, "They want more than the appraised value of the property."

He said he would continue attempts to negotiate a sale price, but would proceed with filing an imminent domain suit, as instructed by supervisors.

Be aware of fire danger with Christmas decorations

To the Editor:

We are into our holiday season, and I would like everybody to think about having a safe and happy holiday. We need to remember to think about safe ways about doing our decorations and putting up our trees.

When buying decorations and extension cords, be sure and read the directions and safety factors on the items you buy. On your cords and any other electrical items, make sure they have the U.L. endorsements on them.

When putting up the tree, if you buy a live tree, make sure you put it in a proper tree stand so you can put water in it to keep the tree from drying out. A dried tree with lights on it can be set on fire by the lights. When putting up lights outside, make sure they are weatherproof and that you do not drive a nail or staple through the wiring.

Also, if you do not have a smoke detector in your home, please get them, they can save your life if you have a fire. I hope everybody has a safe and fulfilling holiday. Just think safe and smart, and you will.

Have a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year from myself and all the fire personnel in Hancock County.

Sincerely yours, Richard Pate Hancock County Fire Marshal

Ground troops in Bosnia a mistake

President Clinton made a serious mistake two years ago when he committed the United States to contributing as many as 25,000 troops on the ground in Bosnia as a fighting force to enable the withdrawal of United Nations peacekeepers.

Since that time the U.S. played a lead role in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) bombing of Serb targets in that country. We have taken sides militarily in a centuries-old ethnic civil war when we first should have lifted the unfair arms embargo which prevented one side in the war the Bosnian Muslims — from buying and acquiring the arms they needed to defend themselves in their conflict with the Serbs. That action alone likely would have prevented the situation we are facing today with the President's decision to deploy 20,000 ground troops to a country still in battle.

The President tells us this is peacekeeping operation, but he is sending a full, U.S. armored division for that job. If as he says, the troops are going in only after the Dayton peace agreement is signed and there are no organized armies at war in Bosnia, why do we need to send in a full armored division? We could instead provide ample support activities for this "peacekeeping" operation from the sea and the air. My fear is that U.S. troops on the ground in Bosnia, far from playing the role of peacekeepers, will become targets of unprincipled Serbians or Croatians. Remember, we bombed the Serbs earlier this year. Do you really believe they're going to forget

The duties of our troops once in Bosnia, as proposed to the President by NATO, range from house-to-house fighting in order to disarm Bosnians to forcing Bosnian citizens from their homes to be relocated to another part of their country. This is an uncertain mission in very bad terrain during the worst winter weather imaginable.

I have a lot of questions I am continuing to ask, as a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, in hearings and discussions with representatives of NATO and European countries. But, at this point, I see no evidence that there is peace in Bosnia to keep and no instance where U.S. vital national security interests have been established or exist to justify risking our troops in this situation.

I respect the authority of the President as the Commanderin-Chief of our military, and I am attuned to the gravity of American credibility and the importance of our leadership role in world peace efforts. But I do not think we should take this particular role in Bosnia.

The United States should not commit its military to a situation unless America's vital national security interests are imperiled. When we do so, we must have public support. We must have Congressional involvement. We must have a clear objective, and we must have a plan for exiting the fight. In the matter of Bosnia, we have none of the above, and that putting U.S. military men and women on the ground in this situation is a mistake.

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

A tribute to Elmer McCoy

One of my heroes of my early years covering the Mississippi Legislature passed away the other day in Booneville at the ripe age of 93.

He was Elmer E. McCoy. Perhaps his name does not mean anything to many Mississip-pians outside of his native northeast Mississippi årea. But what this quietly courageous man meant, particularly to public education in this state, is worthy of more than just a passing note in Mississippi's legislative history.

Elmer McCoy had been in the Legislature several terms before I ever began chronicling what takes place in that oftmaligned lawmaking governmental institution.

He was chairman of the House Education Committee, in times when public education had to virtually beg money from the lawmakers. That was just the white schools. Schools for blacks, of course, got the leaving, slim as they were.

parity between white and black schools was actually confirmed by lawmakers themselves in a remarkable study made in 1953 by a joint legislative committee, a committee which Elmer McCoy helped to create. What resulted from that study was the Minimum Foundation Education program which is still the bedrock of the state's public education system.

Even before the Legislature admitted the discrimination between the races in educational opportunities, McCoy had demonstrated his belief that blacks deserved an equal break.

The occasion that sticks out in my memory came during the 1950 Regular Session of the Legislature when McCoy, naively, brought out of his education committee a bill to establish a minimum salary schedule for teachers.

When he tried to call it up on the floor, several of the archsegregationists in the House immediately pounced on McCoy. One of the seg leaders who was also a shrewd parliamentarian, shot at McCoy: Would this bill apply to Nigra (sic) teachers the same as white teachers?" Innocently, McCoy replied that the bill applied to "all teachers."

"Mistuh Speaker, I move to indefinitely postpone (that was the killer motion of the day) this bill," snorted McCoy's tormentor. Very quickly, the minimum teacher salary bill was sent into

What Elmer McCoy tried to do that day — establish a mini-mum salary schedule for both white and black teachers - did become a reality three years later when the Minimum Foundation program was enacted. The program grew out of the 1953 joint legislative committee report that stands even today as a remarkable document.

Remember, Mississippi then had a rigidly segregated public school system, and the federal courts were already sending strong messages that segregated schools would be declared unconstitutional. The legislative committee was quite aware of that fact, and so acknowledged in its report.

However, though it seems almost incredible, the Mississippi lawmakers declared that education of the two races must be equalized, regardless of what the Supreme Court did. The lawmakers wisely concluded that equalized education for the two races was the best, and only, hope that blacks (called Negroes at the time) could be persuaded to separate themselves voluntarily in the schools.

Amazingly, that program, enacted in 1954-55, consolidated the 2079 school districts (1239 of them for black schools) then in existence into 150 districts statewide. Of the 4301 school buildings used by blacks, only one-third were decent enough to be utilized, said the committee. There were still then dozens of one-room and two-room school houses for both whites and blacks, many with pot-bellied stoves as the sole form of heat. Before he left the Legislature in the 1950s, McCoy had seen to it that a junior college was created in his beloved Northeast Mississippi. His legislation established Northeast Community College, today a thriving institution with an especially strong math and science school that bears Elmer McCoy's name.

His son, Rep. Billy McCoy, who occupies the same Prentiss County seat that his father did, recalled the other day after Elmer's passing, some of his boyhood memories of when his dad was a legislator. He remembered riding the train as a fiveyear-old, accompanying his father to Jackson to spend several weeks during Legislative sessions.

"I realized then what it meant to be away from home for weeks at the Capitol," he said.

One memory of Elmer, the younger McCoy holds dear: "We never heard Daddy speak an ill word about anyone." Certainly in those days of fiery, flamboyant orators in the Legislature, Elmer was a humble rarity.

A few lawmakers with a vision such as Elmer McCoy, who had courage at that difficult era in the state's history, provided key building blocks for a public education system that remains the best hope for Mississippi to compete in the 21st century.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

A Weekly Editorial From Mississippi Economic Council

Youth crime a statewide concern

In the period 1989-1993, Mississippi was the highest ranked state for percentage increase in

The most recent U.S. Department of Justice Statistics reveal that Mississippi has kept that dubious distinction in 1994, with a 9.5 percent increase from 1993, again outpacing all other states.

Mississippi's rising crime rate has been driven by juvenile violence that is growing faster than the juvenile population a fact that many believe will escalate at an even faster rate. Law enforcement officials estimate that at least half the crimes in Mississippi are committed by youths 18 years old and younger.

No longer a problem confined in Mississippi's few urban areas, criminal activity by juveniles is of mounting concern throughout the state. Yet, Mississippi continues to place jurisdiction over juveniles in a diverse group who hold office under varying standards of experience and training. Despite the efforts of dedicated men and women, the juvenile justice system enacted a half century ago needs serious legislative attention in 1996.

The Mississippi Economic Council recommends legislation creating a statewide, uniform juvenile court system that would be capable of dealing swiftly and surely with juvenile crime and juvenile offenders.

The Harrison County Beautification Commission, Hancock Chamber of Commerce, and Jackson County Telephone Book Recycling Committee's telephone book recycling program to collect used telephone directors is scheduled to run through Dec. 8.

"Last year we had a very successful program. The tri-county area collected more than 103 tons or over 62 percent of the 164 tons available for recycling. This year we want to collect at least 110 tons," said Rick Stewart, local regional director of BellSouth.

This year most Gulf Coast area schools will be collecting old directories to raise money for their school. Last year the schools collected over 90,000 of the old directories and earned $21,000 for their efforts.

This money was split among the participating schools based on the number of books they collected.

Speed limits to change

Speed limits within Mississippi will likely change, but notfor at least 60 days, according to Mississippi Department of Transportation (MDOT) executive director Robert L. Robinson.

One action of the National Highway System Designation Act of 1995, signed by President Bill Clinton, is the abolishment of the federally controlled speed limits first imposed as a fuel-"saving measure in 1974. According to the act, states have 10 days to set speed limits or ask for an extension.

"We are asking Gov. Kirk Fordice to request an extension of 90 days in order for the Mississippi Legislature to act on this matter if they choose to do so. The additional time will also enable the professional engineering staff to make accurate, safe recommendations to the Transportation Commission," Robinson said. "Our engineers are consulting with neighboring states and the American Association of State Highway and Transportation officials to insure that the new traffic laws are consistent with sister states within the region." Currently on Mississippi interstates, the rural speed limit is 65 and the urban limit is 55 mph or lower, depending upon traffic counts and other safety factors. All other state maintained highways are 55 mph.

1974, prior to the federally controlled speed limits, Mississippians in passenger vehicles were allowed to drive 70 mph on rural interstates and 65 mph on all other highways. Trucks were allowed 60 mph on rural interstates and 55 mph on all other

Robinson said that, "It is safer if all vehicles travel at the same rate of speed."

Robinson said once speed limits are set, the monumental task of changing posted signs must begin.

Other provisions of the Act are the designation of a priority 160,000-mile system of national highways; the easing of some Environmental Protection Agency requirements for state emissions reduction programs; the elimination of the requirement that states must use recycled rubber in highway pavements; the elimination of the requirement for metric traffic signs; the exemption of farmers from federal hours of service rules for truck drivers during harvest season; and the establishment of "zerotolerance" requirements for alcohol use by drivers under age

Post 3253 Christmas party

The VFW Post 3253 Christ mas party will be Dec 3 at 6 30. p.m. Members are requested to bring a gift for a foster boy or girl and to please put the age of the child on the tag.

This is the second year the post will support the foster children of Hancock County with a gift at Christmas. The post takes the position that these children, more than others, need something that can. help ease their pain of being; away from loved ones during the holidays.

Any citizen who wants to contribute a gift to a Hancock. County foster child may leave it at the post hall prior to Dec. 9.

December 10, Chief Adam said. The fire station is located at the corner of Old Spanish Trail and Bookter Streets in Bay St.

The Doll and Toy Fund provides toys for deserving youngsters from birth to age 13 and special children.

Last year the Doll and Toy Fund served over 1,000 deserving youngsters throughout Hancock County. The Hancock County Doll and Toy. Fund is an agency of the United Way of South Mississippi and also receives support itum way we wuis local merchants, industry, civic organizations and individuals.

"Some give cash and others toys," Adam said.

Toys are purchased for the fund at special prices from local merchants.

Several of the local merchants also collect toys for the Doll and Toy Fund.

Selective of toys toy the youngst. With a spang to age, Chief Maurice said.

Toys will be available to parents with registered children near Christmas at the Bay that it was less than the $6.50 charged by Bay St. Louis. 'Anything less (than $6) is not enough to pay the bill," he

City officials said an estimated 3,045 households will be charged the fee. They said addresses of 2,644 are obtainable through the Water and Gas

Department. The additional 400 addresses, they said, should be able to be obtained through Boudin's. Still to be determined is how commercial establishments will be assessed. Also uncertain is how the fee will be assessed and when it will be implemented.

The resolution approved Tuesday called for a Jan. 1 date. However, state law says that "before the adoption of any resolution or ordinance to increse (the millage or fee)," the city must advertise its intent for three consecutive weeks in a newspaper. The law is also specific as to how the ads must be structured.

To date, the city has not advertised its intent to impose the fee. Gex agreed the resolu-- tion may have to be amended to reflect a change in the starting date if the three notices are not published as state law directs.

Highway helping hands

Motorists stranded on state and federal highways anywhere in Mississippi may now be eligible to receive a helping hand from The Salvation Army and Mississippi Highway Patrol. "Project Assist," begun Sept. 1 in four Highway Patrol districts, is now in effect on all roads under patrol jurisdiction. Major Donald S. Faulkner, divisional commander of The Salvation Army, said Project Assist empowers state troopers to take stranded individuals or families to the nearest restaurant, motel or gas station to resolve their immediate emergency needs.

"We are committed to providing assistance to those in need whether in our shelters or on the road," Faulner said. He said Project Assist equips troopers with purchase order vouchers to help highway travelers who need emergency gasoline, lodging or meals. Once the trooper issues a purchase order to a local merchant, the service provider submits the bill directly to The Salvation Army Divisional Headquarters in Jackson.

The eligibility of stranded motorists to receive benefits from Project Assist is deter- * mined on a case by case basis by the Highway Patrol master sergeant supervisor on duty.

Colonel Jim Stringer, Highway Patrol director, said, "This is not a donation from our merchants. We rely on them to accept these vouchers as a way of extending a helping hand to their neighbors in need. The Salvation Army will fully reimburse the merchant for any expenses incurred with Project . Assist.

"We hope merchants realize the benefits of participating in this worthwhile program, Stringer added.

State troopers came into contact with more than 31,000 motorists in circumstances unrelated to traffic law violations during the fiscal year that ended June 30.

Faulkner said the six-month pilot project will be evaluated March 1, to determine if it should continue.

The first phase included state and federal highways in 39 counties making up the Jackson, Greenwood, Meridian and Hattiesburg district of the Highway Patrol. On Dec. 1, Project Assist was expanded to include highways in the state's 43 counties in the Batesville, New Albany, Starkville, Gulfport and Brookhaven districts.

Several months ago, however, Circuit Court Judge John Whitfield ruled that the bank's paperwork was technically faulty and did not cover the furnishings as collateral.

Meanwhile, Baxter filed counterclaims against the bank, alleging fraud and negligence which he contended damaged him financially. Before that case went to trial last week, Whitfield dismissed Yunie Baxter from the case.

During testimony and in court documents, Baxter said much of the furniture at issue never was purchased with bank funds. And much of what was acquired with the purchase of the home, he said, was sold or given to friends or relatives.

The case involved a series of financial transactions, including loans of $260,000 and $55,000 to the Baxters to buy a home in Diamondhead and furnishings. The Baxters paid off both those loans in a refinancing package invloving a separate mortgage loan company.

The rearranged financing left the Baxters owing the bank $29,176, under a loan the bank contended was secured in part by the furnishings.

Baxter convinced the jury that the bank was negligent by allowing the $260,000 loan to remain in court records after it was paid off by Baxter, clouding the title to his property.

He said in a deposition that he was almost jailed by federal authorities when he tried to use his home as bond security -- the paid-off note and new mortgage made it appear the house was mortgaged for $600,000, he said. Baxter is awaiting sentencing as a result of a guilty plea in a federal money laundering case.

The jury awarded Baxter $29,000 for negligence on the part of the bank, and $29,000 for failure to cancel the deed of trust which clouded title to the Baxter home

Donald J. Rafferty, Baxter's attorney, said some $24,000 of the award will be used to satisfy the remaining loan that Baxter owes to the bank. "We were very fortunate the jury came back with the verdict they did, and very happy with it," said Rafferty.

COURT

Christmas is almost here and with most of the leaves gone from oak, sweet gum and other deciduous trees, the evergreen mistletoe growing in these trees becomes evident.

Mistletoe is considered a half-parasitic plant since its green color means it has chlorophyll and manufactures much of its own food. But it is dependent on the host plant for its minerals and water, making it parasitic. A true parasitic plant lacks chlorophyll and is dependent on the host plant for everything.

The history of mistletoe is deeply interwoven with tales of its mystical powers and medicinal benefits. The list of ailments once treated with mistletoe is extensive and even today the plant is believed by some to have medicinal properties.

It is also known to have some poisonous properties. Use caution when mistletoe with berries is used as a decoration around small children.

Some of the old medicinal recommendations for mistletoe included using mistletoes grown on certain types of trees: The idea was that the mistletoe contained particular chemical properties of the tree on which it grew.

This belief turned out to be fact with the discovery that mistletoe growing on coffee trees contained caffeine. Medicinal properties of mistletoe still are being researched. But remember, humans are warned not to eat or drink anything containing mistletoe or mistletoe extracts.

Even though birds feed on the white berries and in the Southwest deer feed on the leaves in the winter, there is no truth to the once popular belief that if birds and animals can eat the plant, so can man. The mistletoe plant is dependent on birds for distributing its seeds. Each seed is coated with a very sticky gelatinous coating that is not destroyed as it passes through a bird's digestive system.

The sticky seeds in bird droppings that land on tree limbs adhere (mother Nature's super glue) to the limbs and are not easily dislodged.

When conditions are right for germination, the seeds send out a root-like structure that penetrates into the water-carrying tissues of the tree limb, securing a place for the mistletoe plant to feed and grow. This is easier for seeds landing on relatively new growth rather than older limbs with thick bark.

The seeds don't have to pass through a bird for them to germinate, so the sticky seeds a bird will wipe off its beak onto branches also will grow.

Since mistletoe is a perennial plant, it continues to grow year after year, sometimes reacting a large size. A large number of mistletoe plants can injure the host tree by drawing a large portion of the tree's resources.

This can weaken the tree and make it more susceptible to disease and insect attack. Limbs frequently die beyond the point of infestation, exposing the mistletoe to more light and causing it to grow even larger.

Mistletoe has a broad range of host trees, including both deciduous hardwoods and conifers such as pine and fir. It can also be a pest on fruit and nut

Once mistletoe has established itself in a tree, birds can quickly worsen the infestation. Controlling the plant isn't easy. The most common method of control is pruning at a point below the site of infestation.

USM Cuban studies postponed

The organizer of the University of Southern Mississippi's Cuba Studies Project thinks kicking the program off in March — rather than this past October - will prove a good move for all concerned.

USM had scheduled its first Cuba Studies Project for Oct. 21-29, said Dr. Mark Miller, assistant dean of USM's College of International and Continuing Education, and director of the Cuba Studies Project. However, "bureaucratic obstacles" involved in obtaining permission to travel to Cuba from the U.S. Department of Treasury forced postponement of the trip, Miller said.

"We were trying to go at a time when the U.S. Treasury Department was backlogged and some of the rules regarding who could travel and under what circumstances were changing," Miller said. "Now the rules have been clarified and there also new rules that I think are better for us in trying to accomplish a project like this." USM's Cuba Studies Project is now scheduled to take place March 6-14, 1996 about two years after initial efforts began to establish a researchexchange program between USM and the island nation. Miller and College Dean Dr. Tim Hudson first visited the University of Havana in December 1993 in hopes of establishing such a program. Trips back to Cuba and visits by Cuban officials to USM since that time helped make the program a reality, Miller said.

Because of the new rules, "We think we will see more timely issuance of necessary licenses," Miller said.

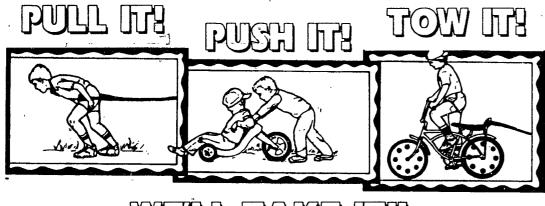

"We feel like this first trip will be more research oriented, but we have tentatively scheduled the second project for January 1997," MIller said.

The Cuba Studies Project is open to professors, graduate students, undergraduate students, journalists and individuals involved in humanitarian or civic missions. Cost of the program is $1,750 — which includes airfare, lodging in Miami and Havana, transportation, and tuition and fees for students. The deadline for applying for the program is Dec. 15. A $200 deposit and appropriate credentials also are due at that time.

For information or to apply for an application, contact Miller at the College of International and Continuing Education, Box 10047, Hattiesburg, MS 39406-0047 or phone (601) 266-4344 or 266-4736.

Ames Kergosien valued the property at $12,000. Bob Heitzmann appraised it at $18,500, while Poulos, Hebert & Associates of Gulfport appraised the land at $55,000.

Favre said the city has "absolutely no need" for the 1.1-acre tract at issue, which lies behind Taconi's off Bayou Galere Road. It is zoned mostly for residential uses, but a portion of it carries commercial zoning.

The mayor said by selling the property the city has the chance to "assist with the expansion of a retail business," although he did not elaborate. Council member Tad Black said while the property is now zoned for residential use, it's inevitable that it will become commercial.

Still, there were concerns about accepting a price so far below the $55,000 appraisal. Council member James Thriffiley said it "looks bad" to disregard the higher appraisal.

"I don't see an acre of anything that close to Highway 90 going for that price," said Thrif-filey. He repeatedly warned against ignoring the higher appraisal, and suggested offering the land for an average of the three appraisals.

When Favre suggested the Poulos firm could be asked to reconsider their $55,000 figure. council member Charles Scianna questioned how a major revision could be justified.

Tuesday, in formal session, Favre said he needed a closed meeting to discuss sale of "surplus" property, and "economic development" of the city. In an apparently unrelated matter, city attorney John Scafide said he needed a closed session to discuss purchase of property.

Council reported no action had been taken in the closed meetings.

In open session, meanwhile, council agreed to terms of a 25-year lease with the Bay-Waveland School District for the proposed ballfield complex on Athletic Drive.

City officials plan to spend some $150,000 upgrading the property with baseball and softball facilities, and related amenities. The lease provides for fiveyear, extensions, and would require the school district to reimburse the city, on a depreciated basis, for the property if the school system were to cancel the lease.

In other matters, council accepted a bid of $1.50 per square foot for a major sidewalk repair program. Council said it would be willing to spend $20,000 to fix deteriorated sidewalks in the downtown

And potential drainage upgrades in four areas of the city will be reviewed by engineer James Chiniche, under an authorization of council.

Council also agreed to advertise for bids for a Public Works Department computer system, and an upgraded system for the Police Department.

to the county could top

The expense is provided for in a special account entitled "lunacies" in the county's general fund ,and Greer said she has put aside $128,000 in the current budget, although the county spent $157,372 to care for lunacy patients last year.

The county pays Hancock Medical Center $25 a day for housing the patients, in addition to providing testing or medicines they might require.

Greer said last year the county reimbursed the hospital $85,622, and another $71,749 was allocated to guard the patients.

In a later interview with the Echo, Hancock County Sheriff Ronnie Peterson and his chief deputy, Gerald Necaise explained that the state puts the burden of housing lunacy patients on all 82 counties in the state, not just Hancock County. The law enforcement officers said the legislature either has to come up with money to reimburse the county for this expense or increase funding to staff its facility in Whitfield, so patients can be transfered there more quickly. Under present state law, a citizen can declare a relative or spouse mentally incompetent by filing papers with Chancery Court. In the case of indigent people who don't have relatives nearby, the sheriff's department can request a competency hearing. Within 48 hours, the person is evaluated either by a private doctor or the county sends him to a branch office of the Gulf Coasta Mental Health Center located in Waveland for County attorney Gerald Gex has been acting as hearing officer in lunacy cases, and he reviews the evaluation of psychiatrists on Gulf Coast's staff.

Based on that testing, Gex recommends either a person be freed or that he requires additional treatment at Whitfield. If a person is ruled incompetent, a Chancery Court judge signs the decree, and the person is bound. over to the county to await transfer.

The burden of housing the patient then falls to the county until there is room for the patient at Whitfield.

"We can't house them in the county jail for fear they might hurt or be injured by other prisoners,"said Peterson. "So, we have an arrangement wherby they are put in Hancock County Medical Center.

While they are hospitalized, the county provides a guard in their room 24-hours a day.

Peterson said the guards are not armed, and are usually retired law enforcement officers or someone who has security guard experience. They are paid $5 an hour on duty, and work on an as-needed basis.

"So, it costs us $120 a day for one prisoner, and if we have three in the hospital, that's $360 a day, so you can see how the expense mounts," said Peterson.

"Some of them might stay two to two and a half moinths before Whitfield accepts them,"the sheriff said.

Don Henderson, Administra-tor of Hancock County Medical Center, said there are usually between two and six lunacy patients housed in the hospital.

"We try to keep them separated in private rooms," said

Although the hospital is reimbursed $25 a day, Henderson admitted the rooms could be used on a more profitable basis.

"This is a growing community," said Henderson. "We're operating at nearly full occupancy.

Henderson said the hospital and its Board of Trustees "stand ready to work with the Board of Supervisors on any solution they might have to the problem.'

He said the hospital's board had looked into the possiblity of building a special lunacy wing similar to what Harrison County has established at one of its hospitals.

"But, Harrison has a population of 175,000 compared to our 35,000, and it's just not economically feasible," he said.
"It's a matter of priorities and funding. It's not in our expansion plans," he said.

"There are two wrongs going on here," Necaise pointed out. "Holding them here is a dis-service to the patient. The judge has ruled that this person needs further treatment, and while he's hospitalized here, he's not getting that.

"In addition, the patient is taking up a bed in the hospital, and that's costing the hospital money.

Even with a special lunacy wing, guards would still be needed, so the cost to the county would not be reduced.

Peterson said he has had to bring some lunacy patients back to the county jail because they were disruptive in the hospital or a threat to other patients.

"We don't have any kind of separate lock-down facilities here, so we have to lock them up right next to where the booking officer can keep a watch on them on a 24-hour basis," he said.

Peterson said the situation is further strained because the county is held liable for any injury the prisoner may cause himself or others or for any damages that might occur.

"It's a Catch 22 situation," said Peterson. "If we release somebody, and that person later commits a crime or kills somebody or harms himself, we can technically be held responsible.

"And, if he harms himself or others while he's in jail or in the hospital, we could be held

Peterson said he has noticed an increase in lunacy cases with the onset of gaming on the coast.

"Some people come here looking fgor a new job and a new life, and when that doesn't work out, they might be homeless.

A lot of times we pick people up on the highways. They don't have any place to stay, they don't have relatives in the area, and they don't have any source of income. They 're freaked out, bordering on a breakdown.

"We might be able to contact a relative, but most of the time they tell us they haven't seen this or that person for the last 10 years, and they don't want anything to do with him, so we have to test him to see if he's competent.

'We can't hold him in jail because he has not committed a

Legally, the sheriff said the county can tap social security or other income of a person who is ruled incompetent and requires treatment, if that person has an

"But, we'd have to hire a person just to begin filing the paperwork that is required," Peterson said.

The Sheriff said the growing costs of housing lunacy patients was "a hot topic" of a recent Convention.

"It's an expense facing all 82 counties," he said. "Something has got to be done, and soon.

Currently, the state reimburses Hancock County $25 a day for each prisoner it holds in county jail awaiting transfer to state prisons.

Peterson said legislators should demand the same or even more compensation from the state for counties holding lunacy patients. There seems to be anothe problem too," Necaise added. He said it was his understanding that a total $120,000 was allocated in the last legislative session to add more beds at Whitfield.

"I hear we have the beds," said Necaise. "But, we haven't added to the staff, so they still can't take more people."

Necaise said there is currently a waiting list to get in Whitfield.

"And, we have to hold them until their number comes up," said Necaise.

Persons are asked to enter through the hospital's outpatient area facing Hwy. 90, according to HMC registered nurse Barbara Boston, program coordinator.

Even with vaccines readily available, more and more children are entering the public school system without the proper vaccinations.

"Some parents are overly concerned about possible side effects, and others simply don't take the time to protect their children," said Boston.

"As a result, millions of school-age children are at risk for diseases once thought to be 'extinct' like polio or diptheria. With the exception of tetanus, all of these diseases are extremely contagious. As long as children are unprotected, serious outbreaks of disease will continue to occur.' Parents should weigh the risk of side effects with the benefit. Common and harmless side effects include a slight temperature, soreness at the injection site or mild rash.

The odds of contracting polio from the vaccine are 1 in 1.5 million with the first dose and 1 in 30 million in subsequent doses. An unprotected child who is exposed to polio and contracts the highly contagious illness can suffer high fever, muscle paralysis, permanent disability and sometimes death.

Ideally, children should be vaccinated on a schedule that begins at birth, with Hepatitus B. This vaccine is repeated at two months and around 12-18 months.

Subsequent vaccinations for polio DPT (diptheria, tetanus and pertussis) and Haemophilus influenze B are given at two months, four months and six months. This is repeated, without the polio vaccine, at 12-15 months, in addition to the MMR (measles, mumps, rubella) vaccine.

When the child is four to six years (usually just before starting kindergarten), repeat vac-cines for polio, DPT and MMR should be administered. This series completes vaccination protection for your child, with the exception of a tetanus/ diptheria vaccine at age 14-16.

Even is your child is seven or older, it's not too late to protect

The free immunization program will continue the second Saturday of each months during 1996.

DWF&P makes illegal netting top priority

Unlawful fishermen beware! The Mississippi Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks (MDWF&P) is stepping up enforement on illegal gill net-ting along the Mississippi Coast. The increased effort centers around stricter regulations governing the use of gill nets.

The regulations, which went into effect this year, are a result of a coperative effort between the State Legislature and the MDWF&P.

MDWF&P officials say under the new law violators will face stiffer penalities for fishing in closed waters. Fines for firsttime offenders who set a net in vaters north of Hwy. 90 in the tee coastal counties run from $2,000 to $2,500 and subsequent offenses carry a fine ranging from $4,000 to $10,000.

The new law also includes provisions prohibiting the suspension of these fines and allowing for the forfeiture of the violaters nets, catch, vessel, motor and equipment used in the violation.

BETWEEN THE LINES

By Richard Meek

For all of his accomplishthents during a career that spanned decades, it is unfortunate New Orleans broadcater Buddy Diliberto will best be remembered for his two most embarassing moments.

The first came 10 years ago when Diliberto, then working for a New Orleans television station, fell for a hoax.

Someone had fabricated a story about then-Chicago quarterback Jim McMahon, and without checking his sources, Diliberto aired the "scoop".

Diliberto's red-faced bosses duickly exiled him into parts unknown for the remainder of Super Bowl week.

His more grevious offense, however, came several weeks ago when he met with Louisiana Governor Edwin Edwards in an apparent attempt to lobby for Mike Ditka as the new head coach of the New Orleans Saints. That is, of couse, if Saints owner Tom Benson fires current head coach Jim Mora.

It is an incident that is sure to haunt the storied broadcaster for the rest of his career. Even as late as last Sunday following the Saints' win over New Engand, Diliberto's talk show was filled with calls concerning the incident.

DELL

But Diliberto should be granted no sympahty as his actions crossed the line of journalistic ethics. The role of a journalist is to report the news, not become part of it. When Diliberto walked into the Governor's Mansion, he traded his mantle of journalist in for talkshow hest/entertainer.

He is to be considered nothing more than a sports radio Phil Donahue or Geraldo. Diliberto may even follow in the Tootsteps, or high heels may be more appropriate, of Donahue, who once wore a dress on his Bhow.

Buddy has promised to wear achieve a certain goal.

What's important to remember, however, is that Buddy's popularity is dependent on his antagonism toward the Saints. Before he had the Saints to kick around, Diliberto was a television also-ran to local giants Hap Glaudi and Wayne Mack.

But Diliberto, to his credit, had the courage to challenge John Mecom's tomfoolery in the Saints' early years.

However, even as the Saints began to flourish under Benson's ownership, Buddy refused to budge. The reality was that he could not, because his ratings would have plummeted.

A view from the other side is healthy, but a responsible journalist should never purposely overlook the positive to garner

Saints vice-president Jim Miller said it best recently when asked about Diliberto. He said the Saints organization does not look at Buddy as a journalist, but as a talk-show host whose job security is ratingsdependent.

Miller is correct. When it comes to the Saints, it is common knowledge Diliberto has compromised his journalistic. integrity for the sake of ratings.

As shameful as Diliberto's actions were, what is more perplexing is why he would lobby for Ditka as coach. Naturally, the obvious reason is that he cohosts a weekly show aired from Casino Magic with the former Bears coach, and he is looking out for his friend. But Ditka is a gridiron dinosaur, whose best coaching years are in his past. The hiring of Ditka would only prolong the Saints' years of futility. Ditka is a credible television analyst, but he should not leave the studio for the sidelines. If he were such a hot property, why has he not been sought out by any other owners?

True, Ditka had a glorious

A sad epilogue to a colorful career that credit goes to then-assistant Buddy Ryan. When Ryan departed for Philidelphia, so did much of the Bears' blueprint for success. Ryan is unfit as a head coach, but he played a leading role in the Bears' successful run.

Ditka's place is in the television booth, not on the Saints sideline.

Diliberto's place is in the radio booth, not in the Governor's Mansion. Until he becomes a member of the Saints adminstration, which is not likely to happen anytime soon, Diliberto's focus should be retaining what little credibility. he has left. For all of his liabilities, his knowledge of sports, aside from the Saints, can be matched by few.

In a way, it is sad to see someone with such a colorful career have it end in disgrace because his own personal agenda got in the way of common sense.

Kudos to Green Bay quarterback and Hancock County native Brett Favre. Favre, currently enjoying his best year as a pro, on Sunday became the third-fastest quarterback in NFL history to reach 100 career touchdown passes. He reached the mark in 62 games, third only to Dan Marino (44) and Johnny Unitas (53). Although he apparently feels differently, as was published in a national publication last week, Favre cannot yet be mentioned as being on the same level as Steve Young or Troy Aikman. He certainly has the talent of the league's two premier quarterbacks, but Aikman and Young are wearing two Super Powl rings. That is the yardstick of success in the NFL. For further evidence, Favre only need look in the Green Bay history book, and look under Bart Starr.

Indeed, Favre has the ability to take his place alongside Starr in the storied history of Green Bay football. Currenty, only Dallas and San Francisco stand in the way.

Local fans will have an opportunity to see their favorite native son play on Dec. 16 when the Packers invade the Superdome in a rare Saturday game against the Saints.

The Bowl Alliance was the beneficiary of a stroke of luck when Onio State fell to Michigan. If not for that unlikely upset, the alliance's dream of a No. 1 versus No. 2 would have been shattered.

The only way to determine a true national champion is a playoff system. The public is crying for it, why won't the NCAA listen?

Surely, it is not because of putting an added burden on the players, as some would argue. The freshman eligibility rule took care of that.

In basketball, March Madness has added millions to the coffers of the NCAA and respective schools. Why not a January Jubilation?

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II The St. Stanislaus Rock-a-Thaw basketball team suffered a incredible loss on December 4 when the Pascagoula Panthers invaded the SSC gym and crushing the Rocks 100-65. The Rocks made many errant passes and seemed to have slow feet compared to the athleticism and speed of Psacagoula. Goula led after the first peripd 18-13 and increased the lead @ 34-26 at halftime. The Rocks boked poised going into the locker room ready to come out and battle the Panthers in the second half. However, Goula's Quickness and sharpshooting beyond the arc proved too much for the Rocks. The Panthers outscored the Bocks 28-12 in the third period with Charles Fountain seemingly not missing a shot as he poured in a game high 33 points off six three-pointers for Pascagoula. Fountain was also perfect from the charity stripe going five for five.

The Panthers scored 38 points to the Rocks 27 points in the fourth period to make the final score.

John Green scored 15 points while Reggie Barnes and Craig Wilson each added 14 points for visiting Psacagoula.

Terry Lawyer led the Rocks with 29 points and 11 rebounds. Kelton Thompson and Maurice Singleton each added nine points for the Rocks in the loss.

In earlier action, the SSC jv squad cropped a nail-biter to their first loss of the season to the Parther jv squad 52-51.

After being down by 12 points in the fourth period, the jv Rocks battled back behind the play of Herman Dunklin, Honore Hazeur, Freddie Lewis.

Rocks battled back to within one point as Dunklin was fouled with :01 left on the clock. Dunklin missed both shooting opportunities and Bradley got the rebound but missed a last second shot at the buzzer.

Dunklin led the Rocks with 13 points while Honore Hazeur finished with 11 points. Derek Bradley chipped in 10 points and Lewis canned eight points. Fitzpatrick led the team with nine rebounds and excellent under the basket defense.

The jv Rocks record fell to 6-1 on the season.

SSC faculty downs Seniors 40-18 in Gridiron benefit game

There was a touch of footballin the crisp air around Bay St. Louis again on November 30. However, it was flag football between the SSC Seniors of 1996 and the faculty at SSC. The faculty defeated the seniors for the third time in as many years byt he score of 40-18.

The flag football game, a benefit for the SSC Gridiron Club, was in its third year and made some serious contributions to the booster club.

Joe Gex comments, "The game was a success. We had the best turnout in the past three years and made some good money for the Gridiron Club."

The game was fun for both sides and clean. Plus, it was for a good cause.'

The faculty opened up the scoring on their first possession when faculty QB Coach Stace McRaney dropped back and hit a streaking Mike Schultz for a 53 yard touchdown. The two point conversion by Mike Gemelli was good and the facul-and hit Joe Gex on an out pattern that turned into a 70 yard Td run. The two-point conversion was no good and the faculty led 14-6.

The seniors took to a ground attack to move into good field position with Chris Middleton and Jerry Polk taking charge on the run. After two successful runs, the seniors decided to go for it all and were intercepted in the endcone by Schultz.

Three plays later McRaney hit Jeff Barbera in the endzone for a 17 yard Td strike. The twopoint conversion was no good and the faculty led 20-6.

The faculty held strong and took the ball over on downs. Two plays into the drive, McRaney threw his fourth TD pass of the game to Schultz for a 37 yard strike. Coach Tim Burns scored on the two-point conversion just before the half ended to make the score 28-6.

Three plays later, the faculty reached the endzone again with McRaney hitting Gex for a 19 vard score. The two-point conversion was no good and the score was 34-12.

On the ensuing kickoff, Polk took the ball on a dazzling 67 yard return for a score. The twopoint attempt was no good and the seniors closed out their scoring leaving the score at 34-18.

Gex returned the kickoff to midfield where McRaney drove the faculty down to the 11 yardline. McRaney hit Mike Reso for a diving 11 yard score to end the scoring for the night. The twopoint attempt was no good and left the final score at 40-18.

McRaney threw for 329 yards and six Td's while Schultz had four catches for 102 yards, two Td's and two interceptions. Gex had four catches for 107 yards and two Td's while Barbera had three catches for 56 yards and a Polk had 157 yards of total offense and two touchdowns while Bergeron threw for 187 yards and two scores.

Gex commented, "There was good competition on both sides. The seniors came out with a great gameplan and pressed us hard at first. We just settled into our own game."

The faculty has defeated the seniors each year of the game. In 1993 the score was 34-12 and in 1994 the faculty won 33-8.
